

Shoulder Pads

No matter what shoulder silhouette is in fashion at the moment, a garment needs shoulder pads for proper support and shape. A garment that fits well and hangs properly from the shoulders will be more flattering to your figure. Shoulder pads can help to slenderize as well as camouflage figure problems, such as sloping shoulders. They also help to retain the shape of the garment when stored on a hanger.

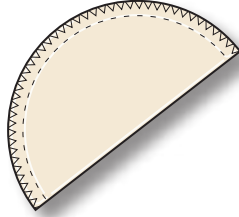

Selecting The Proper Shoulder Pad

Choose shoulder pads according to sleeve style; then choose the size & shape of pad that best fits inside garment. Finally consider the pad that will provide the desired type of shaping at the shoulder.

How to Attach Shoulder Pads to Your Garment

Set-In, All-Purpose and Raglan Shoulder Pads can either be hand-tacked or sewn into a garment. The exception is a pad with hook & loop fastener tape. These either require stitching the loop side of the fastener tape to the shoulder seam or opening the fastener tape strip and placing your bra, slip or camisole strap between the hook and loop tape. Foam Shoulder Pads sit on your shoulders and do not require stitching. Several styles are available with hidden strap holders that secure the pad to the bra strap for extra security.

Follow the package instructions for proper insertion of all pads.

Tips: Since fashion shapes and seam positions vary greatly, you may wish to try a shoulder pad labeled for a style other than the sleeve style on your garment.
